Web World Technologies

Re: A few words of thanks and recommendation.

We sought the assistance of Web World Technologies for an Adobe Flex application that we were needed to obtain and sort digital photos. The initial concept had been specified and partially developed, albeit over budget and over due; therefore the project was deemed as a lost cause. However, not having this application was an impediment achieving our overall business goals – clearly, something had to be done to salvage it.

Mike Dawson and I began a conversation on how we could turn this project around. We spoke at length about the specifics of the application, and then delved into the hard requirements. All throughout, both Mike and Axel Jensen - the Flex developer - met our questions and concerns with the utmost care; our expectations seemed to be their primary concern, and the work that resulted from our imperatives was met with great efficiency and professionalism.

To whom it may concern, our experience with Web World Tech has been an extremely pleasant one, and we look forward to our next endeavor together. I hereby recommend their Flex development services without reservation.

Sincerely,
Mark Liu
